These Terms of Service ("Terms") govern your use of the World Monitor dashboard, website, desktop apps, API, MCP server, and SDKs (the "Service"), operated by World Monitor FZ LLC, a free zone limited liability company registered in Dubai, United Arab Emirates ("World Monitor", "we", "us").

These Terms travel with the End User License Agreement. The EULA is the license — what each plan lets you do, on every surface, and what you may keep and pass on. These Terms are how the Service is operated and sold: accounts, acceptable use, the intelligence disclaimer, billing, warranties, liability, termination, and governing law. Where the two overlap, the EULA controls on license scope and these Terms control on everything else.

This page is written in plain language and is not legal advice.

Accepting these Terms

You accept these Terms by creating an account, subscribing to a plan, installing or launching a desktop application, or sending a request to the API or MCP server. If you do not agree, do not use the Service.

By accepting, you confirm that you are of the legal age to enter a contract where you live, and that if you are accepting on behalf of an organization you are authorized to bind it. "You" then means that organization.

These Terms are written in English. Translations are provided for convenience; the English text governs and is the version any recorded acceptance refers to.

The Service

World Monitor aggregates and presents real-time global intelligence from many third-party and open sources, with automated and AI-generated analysis layered on top. The basic dashboard is available without an account. Additional features are available on paid plans.

We may change, suspend, or discontinue any part of the Service at any time. If we discontinue, or materially and permanently degrade, a feature that was part of a paid plan when you purchased it, we will give at least 30 days' notice and, at your election, refund the unused portion of prepaid fees for the remainder of the current billing period.

Features labelled beta, preview, or experimental are excluded from that commitment and from the warranty below. They are provided as-is and may be changed or withdrawn at any time without notice or refund.

Free and anonymous access

The basic dashboard, the public corpus pages, the credential-free `get_sources` tool, and the free-account allowance are provided as-is and as-available, without warranty, indemnity, or any service commitment, and may be modified, limited, or withdrawn at any time without notice.

Only these sections apply to free and anonymous access: this section, Acceptable use, Intelligence disclaimer, Intellectual property, Third-party sources and links, Disclaimer of warranties, Limitation of liability, Governing law, and General. The billing, refund, and notice commitments elsewhere in these Terms apply only to paid plans.

Claims arising from free or anonymous access are capped at USD 100 in aggregate — including where you also hold a paid plan. Paying for one thing does not raise the ceiling on a failure of something we give away. For a user who pays nothing this matches the general cap below; the point of stating it here is the mixed case.

Accounts

Some features require an account, provided through our authentication providers. Accounts are for people old enough to consent to data processing where they live; the Service is not directed to children (see the Privacy Policy). If you process personal data through the Service as a controller, the Data Processing Addendum applies and needs no signature.

You are responsible for keeping your credentials and API keys secure, for giving accurate registration information, and for all activity under your account. Notify us at support@worldmonitor.app promptly if you suspect a credential has been exposed. On reasonable suspicion of compromise we may suspend the account or require credential rotation, and we will tell you why when we do.

An account belongs to one named individual. Seat rules, and what counts as sharing, are in EULA §4.2.

Acceptable use

EULA §8 is the operative list of restrictions. This section summarizes it; where the two differ, the EULA controls.

You agree not to:

- use the Service unlawfully, or to harm, harass, surveil, profile, or endanger any person, or to make decisions about an individual that affect their rights (but see the carve-out below);

- use the Service in a high-risk system — one where failure or inaccuracy could result in death, serious injury, or severe physical or environmental damage. Where you build any system on the Service, you are responsible for its safety, redundancy, and human review;
- exceed published rate limits, or circumvent quotas, authentication, entitlement checks, or access controls, including by scraping a rendered page to avoid a metered endpoint;
- scrape, resell, or redistribute the data or Service except as expressly permitted by your plan, the EULA, and the source licenses;
- use Outputs to train, fine-tune, distill, or benchmark a competing model or dataset without our written permission. Using Outputs inside your own AI workflows is expressly allowed, and model-training rights are available under an Enterprise order form;
- disrupt, overload, or attempt to gain unauthorized access to the Service or its infrastructure;
- misrepresent affiliation with or endorsement by World Monitor (see the Trademark Policy);
- use the Service in breach of applicable sanctions or export-control law, or make it available to a restricted party under that law.

What these restrictions do not prohibit. Nothing in this section or in EULA §8.9 prohibits sanctions screening, know-your-customer and other regulatory compliance checks, corporate due diligence, academic research, or journalism, in each case conducted lawfully and consistently with the terms of the underlying source. The Service publishes sanctions lists and other public-interest data precisely so they can be used for those purposes.

Automated access is your access. An agent, script, or MCP client acting for you consumes your license at your plan's scope. Automating does not widen what you are licensed to do.

What happens on breach. Our normal course is warning, then throttling, then suspension, then termination, as described under Suspension and termination below.

Intelligence disclaimer

Read this carefully. World Monitor aggregates data from third-party and open sources and generates automated and AI analysis. This information:

- is provided "as is" and "as available", without warranty of accuracy, completeness, timeliness, or fitness for any purpose;
- may be delayed, incomplete, wrong, or misattributed, and may reflect the errors of its underlying sources;
- is generated by predictive models and is not reviewed or verified by a person before it reaches you;
- is not professional advice — not financial, investment, legal, security, medical, or safety advice.

Do not rely on the Service for decisions where errors could cause loss or harm — including trading, travel, security, or life-safety decisions — without independently verifying the information. AI-generated briefings and forecasts are probabilistic and can be confidently wrong. You are solely responsible for how you use the information, and high-risk deployments are prohibited outright under Acceptable use.

API, MCP, and programmatic access

Programmatic use through the REST API and MCP server is subject to these Terms, the EULA, the API documentation, and your plan's rate limits and quotas.

Your quotas are fixed for the period you paid for. The rate limits, quotas, and plan allowances published for your plan when you purchased or last renewed apply for the remainder of that billing period. Changes take effect at your next renewal.

Keep your API keys confidential; you are responsible for usage attributed to them. If a key is exposed, tell us and we will rotate it — usage before you tell us remains yours.

We may throttle, suspend, or revoke access to protect the Service or to stop abuse. We will tell you why, and restore access once the cause is resolved.

Subscription license scope

Your license to use the hosted Service and its outputs is stated in full in the End User License Agreement. That one agreement covers every surface — the web dashboard, the desktop applications, the API and MCP server, the SDKs and CLI, embeds, and alerts — and it is what controls if it and this page ever disagree.

Paid plans grant a limited, non-exclusive right to use the hosted Service and its outputs during an active subscription, subject to that Agreement, these Terms, the limits of the plan you purchased, and any order form or written agreement with us. "Outputs" include dashboard views, alerts, reports, exports, API and MCP responses, and analysis created from them.

The plans, and the scope each one grants, are the Personal license (Pro), the Commercial license (Pro Business), the Commercial license — for your organization (API Starter), the Commercial license — for your customers (API Business), and Enterprise. In short: a Personal license is one person working for themselves; Pro Business adds company and client work for that one named user; API Starter covers an organization's internal systems; API Business adds delivering outputs to that organization's customers inside a customer-facing product; Enterprise is whatever the order form says. No plan below Enterprise permits offering World Monitor data as a standalone database or substantially similar feed. The EULA defines each scope, what it excludes, what you may retain and redistribute, and the rules that apply to every plan.

Dashboard seats. API Starter is an API plan: it includes no dashboard seat, and dashboard access is a separate Pro or Pro Business subscription. API Business includes five dashboard seats for named users at the same organization, carrying that plan's commercial scope. Everything else is one named user per subscription. Additional seats are available on request.

If your use expands beyond the scope of your plan, you must upgrade or obtain written permission before that expanded use begins.

These subscription licenses apply to the hosted Service and its outputs. The World Monitor source code remains subject to AGPL-3.0-only, and the official thin client packages remain subject to MIT; see the License. A subscription does not grant the right to incorporate AGPL-covered World Monitor code into a proprietary product or keep a covered modified deployment private, and the EULA does not narrow any right those licenses give you in the code.

Subscriptions and billing

Paid plans are sold and processed by Dodo Payments, which acts as the merchant of record; payments and any refunds are handled by Dodo Payments, and by subscribing you also agree to its terms. Subscriptions renew automatically until you cancel.

Taxes. Fees are exclusive of VAT, sales tax, and other duties, which you pay in addition, other than taxes on our income. If you must withhold tax, you bear it, so that we receive the full stated fee.

Cancelling. Cancel from the billing portal at any time. Cancellation stops future renewals, your access continues to the end of the period already paid for, and no further charges are taken.

If a payment fails, we retry and email you at the address on the account. Access continues during that retry window; if payment is still not made, the subscription is suspended and then returns to the free tier. We do not terminate a paid account for a failed payment without that sequence.

Price and plan changes take effect at your next renewal, with at least 30 days' notice — see Changes to these Terms below.

Refunds. Fees are non-refundable, except: (a) where we discontinue or materially degrade a paid feature (The Service, above); (b) where you object to a material change to these Terms (Changes to these Terms, below); and (c) where required by applicable consumer-protection law.

Disclaimer of warranties

To the maximum extent permitted by law, the Service is provided "as is" and "as available" without warranties of any kind, whether express or implied, including merchantability, fitness for a particular purpose, non-infringement, and uninterrupted or error-free operation. This applies in full to free and anonymous access, beta features, third-party source data, and all Outputs.

Indemnification

You defend us. You will defend us against third-party claims arising from your misuse of the Service, your breach of these Terms or the EULA, or Your Content, and indemnify us against damages and reasonable costs finally awarded or agreed in settlement.

We will notify you of the claim, and we may take control of the defence at your expense. You will cooperate with that defence and will not settle a claim in a way that binds us without our consent.

We do not give an indemnity under these Terms. An indemnity from us is one of the matters a negotiated agreement can cover; see Enterprise and negotiated terms.

Limitation of liability

To the maximum extent permitted by law, neither party will be liable for any indirect, incidental, special, consequential, or punitive damages, or for any loss of profits, data, or goodwill, arising from the Service — even if advised of the possibility.

Our total liability for all claims in aggregate, not per claim, will not exceed the greater of the fees you paid us for the Service in the twelve months before the claim, or USD 100. Claims arising from free or anonymous access are capped at USD 100 whatever you pay for a plan — see Free and anonymous access above.

These caps do not apply to: death or personal injury caused by negligence; fraud or wilful misconduct; your obligation to pay fees; your breach of the license scope in the EULA or infringement of our intellectual property; or either party's indemnity obligations, which are capped separately as stated above.

Nothing here limits liability that cannot be limited under the law that applies to you.

Suspension and termination

We may suspend your access for non-payment, for breach of these Terms or the EULA, for a security risk, where the law or a regulator requires it, or where a data source demands it.

How we normally do it. For a breach that is not urgent, we will tell you what is wrong and give you a reasonable chance to put it right before suspending. We suspend immediately for a security risk, a legal requirement, abuse, or a source provider's demand. Either way we tell you why. A guaranteed cure period is one of the matters a negotiated agreement can cover.

Termination. Either party may terminate for a material breach the other has not cured within 30 days of written notice. You may stop at any time by cancelling.

When your plan ends, EULA §10 governs what you keep: reports, analysis and R1/R2 Outputs already retrieved stay yours under the same class rules; you must stop fetching, refreshing, distributing to new recipients, and operating integrations that need an active entitlement; you must stop distributing R3 Outputs and delete cached R3 Source Content once its 30-day window closes; and you must delete cached R4 Source Content, which is internal-use-only for the term of your plan. Credentials are revoked.

Surviving these Terms: the intelligence disclaimer, intellectual property, warranties disclaimer, indemnities, limitation of liability, confidentiality, governing law, and this section.

Verifying usage

We may check usage telemetry from your account against the plan you bought. If it shows use beyond your plan — more named users, or a use the plan does not cover — we will tell you, and you will either bring the use within scope or pay the difference at list price for the period concerned.

There is no audit of your premises and no penalty multiple.

Intellectual property

The World Monitor platform source code is licensed under AGPL-3.0-only, with certain client packages under MIT — see the License. Your rights in the Service and its Outputs are contractual and are set out in the End User License Agreement; they are not a transfer of ownership.

On facts and compilations: individual facts are not protected by copyright, and we do not claim to own them. What we do own is our selection, compilation, and arrangement of them, our scoring and forecasting methodology, our databases, and the software that produces them. EULA §5 is what tells you which Outputs you may redistribute, and on what terms.

The World Monitor name, logo, and branding are not covered by the code license; see the Trademark Policy, which no plan overrides. Underlying data belongs to its respective sources and is subject to their licenses and terms.

Third-party sources and links

The Service incorporates data and links from third parties. We do not control and are not responsible for third-party sources, their accuracy, or their availability, and inclusion does not imply endorsement.

If a source withdraws or changes its terms, that is not a breach of these Terms by us and does not by itself entitle you to a refund. Where the loss of a source materially and permanently degrades a feature of your paid plan, the discontinuation commitment in The Service applies.

R3 clearance. EULA §5 makes headline-and-snippet (R3) rights available per source on request. We will answer a written request within 10 working days, and we publish the cleared-source position in the source attribution ledger as sources are reviewed.

Changes to these Terms

For paid subscribers, material changes take effect at the start of your next billing period, and we will give at least 30 days' notice by email to the address on your account and in the product. If you object, cancel before they take effect and we will refund the pro-rata portion of prepaid fees for the remainder of your term.

Non-material changes, and changes required by law, may take effect sooner. For free and anonymous access, changes take effect when published.

Every change is published here with a new "Last updated" date. A signed order form is not changed by an update to this page during its term.

Enterprise and negotiated terms

These Terms, the EULA, the Privacy Policy and, where you process personal data, the Data Processing Addendum are the whole of the agreement for the self-serve plans — Free, Pro, Pro Business, API Starter, and API Business.

Larger volumes, rights the published plans do not grant, and terms written for your organization are handled in a separate signed agreement. Depending on what we agree, that can cover matters these Terms do not — for example a performance warranty, an indemnity from us, confidentiality undertakings, a service-level commitment, a data processing agreement, a negotiated liability cap, a different governing law or venue, or an agreed dispute-resolution procedure.

None of that is included in, or claimable under, any self-serve plan, and nothing in this section commits us to agree to any of it. It describes what a negotiated agreement can address, not what you are entitled to. Where a signed agreement does address something, it controls for that customer and changes nothing here for anyone else.

Talk to us at enterprise@worldmonitor.app.

Governing law

These Terms are governed by the laws of the United Arab Emirates, without regard to conflict-of-laws principles. World Monitor FZ LLC is registered in a Dubai free zone, and the courts of Dubai, United Arab Emirates will have jurisdiction over any dispute arising out of or relating to these Terms or the Service. Nothing in this section removes any protection you have under the mandatory consumer-protection laws of your country of residence, including any right you may have to bring proceedings in your local courts.

Before starting proceedings, each party will try to resolve the dispute informally: write to the other describing the issue, and give 30 days of good-faith discussion, escalated to a senior contact on each side. This does not prevent either party from seeking urgent injunctive relief.

This is our standing position for self-serve plans. Enterprise customers may negotiate a different governing law and venue in a signed order form, along with a negotiated liability cap and any service-level commitment; where an order form states them, it controls over this section and the End User License Agreement records that precedence.

General

Entire agreement. These Terms, the EULA, the Privacy Policy, the Trademark Policy, and any order form are the entire agreement between us about the Service. If they conflict, the order in EULA §2 controls: a signed order form, then the EULA, then these Terms, then plan descriptions, pricing pages, and documentation.

Severability. If any provision is held unenforceable, it is modified to the minimum extent needed to make it enforceable, or severed, and the rest continues in force.

Assignment. You may not assign these Terms without our written consent, except to a successor in a merger or a sale of substantially all your assets, on 30 days' notice. We may assign to an affiliate or to a successor in a merger, acquisition, or sale of substantially all our assets.

Notices. We give notice to the email address on your account, and it is treated as received the day after it is sent. You give legal notice to World Monitor FZ LLC at support@worldmonitor.app, and it is treated as received when we acknowledge it or on the second working day after sending, whichever is earlier.

Force majeure. Neither party is liable for a delay or failure caused by something outside its reasonable control, including a source outage, an infrastructure-provider failure, an act of government, or a network failure. This does not excuse an obligation to pay.

No waiver. A failure or delay in enforcing a right does not waive it.

No third-party beneficiaries, except that our affiliates, operator, and personnel may rely on the limitation of liability and the indemnities.

No agency. Nothing here creates a partnership, agency, employment, or joint venture.

Headings are for convenience and do not affect interpretation.

Publicity. We may identify you as a customer by name and logo in a customer list. Tell us and we will stop.

Previous versions

This page carries the date it was last changed. Every earlier version, and the exact change between any two, is in the repository history: github.com/koala73/worldmonitor/commits/main/docs/terms.mdx. When you accept these Terms we record the version you accepted, and that version resolves to the text above it in that history.
